Scottish Journal of Residential Child Care

Editor

Andrew Kendrick, University of Strathclyde, UK

The Scottish Journal of Residential Child Care provides a forum for residential child care staff and other professionals to reflect on policy, practice, training and research in the field of residential child care. The journal maintains a practice focus and all papers are encouraged to examine and discuss implications for practitioners and the dissemination of best practice. By emphasising the links between policy, practice and research, the journal intends to promote and enhance the development of positive practice in residential child care.

The journal, in particular, encourages papers from residential child care practitioners and also contributions from young people reflecting their experience of residential child care. It is published twice a year and welcomes contributions in the form of research and practice papers, case studies, brief communications and correspondence from readers.

The Scottish Journal of Residential Child Care (ISSN 1478-1840) is published twice a year on behalf of the Scottish Institute of Residential Child Care.
